BENCH LOOKBOOK

WATSON BENCH

Named for our dear friend Elizabeth Otey Watson, the Watson Bench features a horizontal grid-style back with a pagoda-inspired yoke. Elizabeth became enamored with Cantonese antiquities while living in East Asia with her husband for nearly two decades during the 1950s and ’60s, and she is renowned for her collection of Ming and Qing dynasty pieces.

COUPER BACKLESS BENCH

An addition to our Couper Collection, the Couper Backless Bench is designed and constructed just like our Couper Ottoman, but on a larger scale. This super strong bench requires heat to fuse such ultra heavy parts.

OUR VIRGINIA BENCH COLLECTION

The pieces that started it all. We founded our workshop to build the most enduring garden furniture in the world. Our grandmother always said, a garden wasn't a garden until it had a bench. Our signature Virginia crest rail, drawn from a prized family chair, alludes to a pagoda roofline. There are certain things only a small workshop can do, little details that must be undertaken by hand, and this is one of them. Drawn from our archives, the garden bench collection shares complex design elements masterfully executed by our workshop.

BENEDICT BADMINTON BENCH

We have long admired the Gothic style, and introduced our very first Gothic bench in 1991. Our fascination with the architectural style is amplified and accentuated in our Benedict Badminton Bench, an extravagantly detailed statement of artistry and craftsmanship for the garden. We named the Benedict Bench for dear family friends in Lynchburg, Virginia. The extraordinary level of complexity inherent in the Benedict is a testament to the uncompromising artisanal practices we apply to the difficult craft of working with the enduring material of aluminum.
